By the time Expendable begins, the Expendables members already have been through a lot of action. They're "tired, they're old, they're broke," says Stallone, "but they're still the best of the best."

It's the rugged, over-the-top characters that make Expendable so fun. Stallone's character, Barney, is a former Marine who's been in the military for 20 years.

The image is a very poor quality scan of a document. It appears to be a page from a book or a report, but the text is almost entirely illegible due to extreme blurring and noise. There are some faint, dark shapes that might be letters or words, but they cannot be reliably transcribed. A small, dark, rectangular object is visible on the right side of the page, possibly a stamp or a piece of tape. The overall appearance is that of a corrupted or damaged scan.

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness and health of sedentary middle-aged men. The study was a randomized controlled trial. The participants were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of aerobic and resistance exercises. The control group did not exercise. The results showed that the exercise group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and health than the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve the physical fitness and health of sedentary middle-aged men.

Figure 1 is a 3D scatter plot illustrating the relationship between the number of days of exposure (x-axis), the number of days of observation (y-axis), and the number of days of follow-up (z-axis). The x-axis ranges from 0 to 100, the y-axis from 0 to 100, and the z-axis from 0 to 100. The plot shows a series of points representing different exposure scenarios, with a legend indicating 'Exposure' and 'Observation'.

No joke: PH automated elections world model

Philippines' automated elections system, which is being tested in a pilot project in the country's capital, Manila, is being hailed as a world model for its efficiency and security.

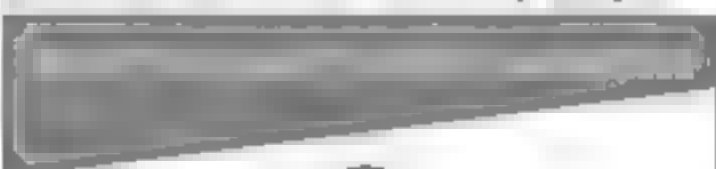

The system, developed by the Philippine Automated Elections System (PAES), is a computerized system that allows voters to cast their ballots electronically. The system is designed to be secure, transparent, and easy to use.

The system is being tested in a pilot project in Manila, where it will be used for the upcoming local elections. The results of the pilot project will be used to determine if the system is ready for nationwide use.

Why Inquirer now using PH not RP?

The Inquirer is now using the PH not RP system for its reporting. The system is designed to be secure, transparent, and easy to use. The results of the pilot project will be used to determine if the system is ready for nationwide use.

Figure 1 is a line graph showing the effect of the concentration of the inhibitor on the rate of polymerization. The y-axis is labeled "Rate of polymerization" and ranges from 0 to 1.0. The x-axis is labeled "Concentration of inhibitor" and ranges from 0 to 1.0. The curve starts at (0, 1.0) and decreases as the concentration of inhibitor increases, following a non-linear path that levels off towards a rate of approximately 0.4 at an inhibitor concentration of 1.0.

A screenshot of a mobile application interface. The top status bar shows signal strength, time (10:10), and battery level (87%). Below the status bar, there's a header area with the text "DLF". The main content area is mostly black, suggesting a video or a very dark image. At the bottom, there's a navigation bar with several icons, including what looks like a home icon, a search icon, and others. The overall appearance is that of a mobile app running on an Android device.
